Raju's birthday : co-read the story

Raju was very excited because tomorrow was his birthday! He and his friends, Bheem, Chhutki, Jaggu, Kalia, and Dholu-Bholu decided to go to the market to buy decorations for Raju's birthday party. While going to the market, they saw a small kid playing with a broken toy. "I wonder why he's playing with a broken toy," said Jaggu. Raju and his friends thought about this.

At the market, all the kids happily bought decorations for the party. Raju got green streamers, Bheem got red balloons, Chhutki got yellow lights, Jaggu got confetti, Kalia got party hats for everyone, and Dholu-Bholu got a banner that said Happy Birthday. While the rest of the kids were happily decorating the hall for the party, Raju was thinking what he could do to help the little kid they saw in the market.

Next day, on his birthday, Raju blew the candles and cut the cake. After everyone had eaten the cake, they all gave their gifts to Raju. Bheem gave him a car toy, Chhutki gave him a train set, Jaggu gave him legos, Kalia gave him a robot, and Dholu-Bholu gave him a jigsaw puzzle. Raju was very happy with all the toys he got!

Suddenly, Raju thought about the little boy in the market. He said, "I have so many new toys now. Why don't I give him one of my toys?" "That's a great idea, Raju!" said Bheem. "Yes, he will be so happy!" said Kalia. "Let us also take a piece of cake for him," said Chhutki. Tuntun auntie cut a big piece of cake and gave it to Chhutki. They all went to the market to search for the little boy. But they couldn't find him anywhere! They went around the market and found him sitting under the big banyan tree.

Raju went to him and said, "It is my birthday today and I cut a birthday cake. Please take this cake. I also got many new toys so I wanted to share this car toy with you." The little boy jumped with joy that Raju was sharing his toy with him. "Thank you! I really like it," said the boy. Raju was very glad that he shared his toy with the little boy.
