BUTTERFLIES

Butterflies aren't just beautiful, they're also crucial for our planet. They help pollinate many plant species, and as bee populations drop, butterflies become even more important for ensuring plant health. They are an important food source, with nearly two-thirds of all invertebrates connected back to butterflies on the food chain. And finally, they are an effective natural pest control which limits the use of pesticides that pollute our environment.

Activity: Make a BEE HOTEL

Today, you're going to make a Mason Bee Hotel using materials around your house. Roots & Shoots leader on the National Youth Leadership Council (NYLC) Maddy Gregg, is going to help! She created The Thriving Hive Project.

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW:

The most common of the solitary bees are Mason Bees. Mason bees don't build wax comb or produce honey. They don't stay in a hive, instead they lay their eggs in small tube-like holes and seal them with mud.

HOW TO START: Watch Maddy Gregg's instructional video for help building your Mason Bee Hotel! Watch at <https://bit.ly/rsbeehotel>.

MATERIALS:

- A container to build your hive in. A box, can, jar, or mug will work!
- Any tube shaped objects to fill your container. Try bamboo shoots or rolled up magazine pages, just be sure they have a diameter of 8 mm to 1 in.
- Twine or string to hang your hotel.

FUN FACTS!

- Mason Bees pollinate 20 times more than the Honeybee!
- Unlike most bees, Mason Bees rarely sting. Their stingers cannot penetrate skin.

Instructions:

1. Clean your container base.
2. If you are creating your own tubes, roll up and secure material to create tubes with a hollow diameter of 8 mm to 1 in. You can secure material using tape or small rubber bands.
3. Fill your base with your tubes, making sure that you put enough tubes in your base to not move around.
4. Cut two pieces of twine at three feet each. Tie the ends of one piece of twine together to form a loop, then repeat with the other piece of twine.
5. Lay your loops on a flat surface and place your hive on top of them so that there's a piece of twine on either end of it.
6. Lift your twine loop up and around your container and feed one end through the other, then pull tight. Repeat this with your other piece of twine.
7. You're Mason Bee hotel is now ready to hang! Hang your bee hotel outside in a sunny spot hanging south. Watch your hotel to look for new residents!

THE UNDERGROUND RAILROAD

DIRECTIONS: Read the two texts below. Then, use the Venn diagram on the next page to compare and contrast details from the two passages.

TEXT 1

Starting in the early 1800s, the Underground Railroad was a secret organization of routes and safe places used by slaves to escape to freedom. Slaves left the southern states, where slavery was legal, and went to the northern states and Canada, where they could be free. Along the way, people who were against slavery, called abolitionists, would hide the slaves until they could move to the next stop along the route. Reverend John Rankin, one of many abolitionists involved in the movement, hid over 2,000 escaping slaves in his home in Ohio.

Using the Underground Railroad was dangerous. If slaves were caught escaping, they were subjected to extreme, violent punishments. Slaveholders and law enforcement used packs of dogs, called bloodhounds, to track down escaped slaves.

The Underground Railroad ended when slavery was abolished during the Civil War. At least 30,000 people used the secret system to make their way to freedom.

The Underground Railroad was a movement that was organized by former slaves and people who opposed slavery.

Though it was a dangerous journey, it allowed thousands of slaves to find a path to free states in the north. Slaves were led by people who knew the route, called conductors, and traveled mostly during the night. Harriet Tubman, a former slave and one of the most famous conductors, led 13 groups of slaves to freedom.

As more and more slaves escaped to the north, slaveholders grew angry and asked the government to put a stop to the Underground Railroad. They believed that slaves were their property and that escaped slaves were “stolen” from them.

As the number of escaped slaves grew, the United States government passed a law called the Fugitive Slave Act of 1850. The law required law-enforcement officials to capture and return slaves to their owners, even if they were found in a free state. People who were caught helping slaves were subjected to harsh punishments.

Using Formatting to Pace Your Piece

What if writing had no built-in breaks for the reader? The writing would go on and on, sentence after sentence, with no paragraphs or chapters. Every page would be a "wall of text," page after page, until the end of the essay or book. Our eyes and brains would get tired!

Authors and publishers use three main formatting strategies to give our eyes and brains mini-breaks, and to help us understand how the information is organized. This helps us make sense of what we are reading.

There are three main formatting strategies, called "breaks," that are used to organize and pace narrative texts:

- Chapter Breaks
- Paragraph Breaks
- Text Breaks

Writers can learn how to write better stories by studying great writing. Select a novel to use for the following activity. Read about each kind of break, and then look through your novel to find two examples of each kind of break. Record the information in the table.

Chapter breaks are used when the author:

- Creates a change in time or place.
- Shifts the narrator to tell the story from a different character's point of view.
- Creates a cliffhanger by breaking the paragraph in the middle of the action.

Page	What do you think was the reason for this chapter break? Choose from one of the bullet points listed above.

Paragraph breaks are used when:

- The story goes in a new direction.
- There's a scene change.
- A dialogue occurs back-and-forth between speakers, creating a new paragraph each time someone different speaks.

Page	What do you think was the reason for this paragraph break? Choose from one of the bullet points listed above.

Text breaks are those places where the author wants to insert a space, but not a new chapter or section. Lots of authors use them, and they often create problems for book layout. There are many ways the text break can be used to:

- Give the reader a rest.
- Change scene in the middle of a chapter.
- Insert a storyline outside the current narrative.
- Flash back to an earlier event.
- Supply explanation or backstory to the main action.

Page	What do you think was the reason for this text break? Choose from one of the bullet points listed above.

Can You Afford It?

Next summer, you are going to try to earn extra money each month to buy the things you want. Decide whether or not you can afford each of the things you want each month, depending on your income and expenses.

In June, you earn $85 from babysitting, and get $50 in birthday money. If you also get $2 every time you walk your neighbor's dog, Barksalot, and you walk the dog 10 times in June, how much is your total income for the month of June? _____

Before you buy anything, your parents want you to put away 20 percent of your monthly income in a savings account for college. How much do you have to put in your savings account this month? _____ How much do you have left? _____

If you spend $35, including tax of 8 percent, on a new swimsuit at the beginning of June, how much income do you have left? _____

To go along with your new swimsuit, you'd like to buy a sunhat. The hat costs $24 plus 8 percent tax. How much income do you have left? _____

At the end of the month, your friends invite you to a concert. The tickets cost $39.50 plus a $12 service charge. Can you afford it? _____

In July, you earn $66 from babysitting, and you walk Barksalot 14 times. Your family has a garage sale where you make $18 by selling your old snowboarding boots. What is your income in July? _____

How much money do you put into your college savings account? _____

How much do you have left? _____

You wore your new swimsuit and sun hat to an outing on the beach with your friends. You bought a sandwich for $5.99 and a drink for $1.99. There was no sales tax. How much money do you have left? _____

For your mom's birthday in August, you want to buy her a heart necklace. It costs $59.99 plus 10% sales tax. Can you afford it? _____

Cause and Effect: Structure

Cause and effect are connected events.	Cause (First)	Effect (Then)
A cause is the first event and the effect is the second event , or resulting action, that happens after the cause.	It rained for three months in India.	There were floods.

Directions: Label the signal words "SW," and underline and label the cause "C" and the effect "E" in different colors. Some signal words may include the following: "because," "due to," "lead to," "since," "as a result," and "if-then" sentences.

Precipitation, or rain, happens because warm air is filled with heavy water droplets and rain falls. When the sun heats up water, it leads to water droplets rising into the air. Water droplets join together in the sky and make clouds. The droplets get bigger in the clouds due to water droplets bumping into each other. Since the droplets get heavier and heavier, they eventually fall as rain.

While most rain does not last very long, monsoon seasons can last for months. A monsoon is a seasonal wind system from the Indian Ocean. It blows from the southwest in the summer and the northeast in the winter. When the wind system hits the southwest, heavy rain begins.

Name _____

Date _____

Every summer, India has storms that never seem to end. The rain can last for up to five months. As a result, large amounts of water cover southern Asia and the Indian Ocean. People and wildlife rely on these seasonal monsoons because the storms help water the crops and replenish rivers. If a monsoon strikes too early in the summer, then dangerous floods can wipe out whole towns. But if a monsoon happens too late, then the lack of water can cause droughts and famine. Famine and drought can cause thirsty plants and hungry people. The balance between the right amount of rain can affect many people.

Challenge: Find cause-and-effect relationships that do not have typical signal words or phrases.

OH, LOOK AT THE TIME!

It's time for a little activity about angles.

Directions: Below are pictures of clocks with two hands that make one angle. Use your protractor to find out if they make an acute or obtuse angle. Remember to double check your answers before you submit your paper!
